RE: EEOC v. Wal-Mart Stores East, LP
Case No. 1:17-cv-00070

Dear Judge Griesbach:

The EEOC writes to propose a briefing schedule for post-trial motions. Following the verdict on Thursday, July 15, 2021, the EEOC suggested that its motion for equitable relief follow the same briefing schedule as Walmart's post-trial motions, whose deadline we anticipated would be triggered by the forthcoming entry of judgment. As the Court determined on July 16, 2021, that judgment will not be formally entered until after further motion practice, the EEOC respectfully requests that a briefing schedule be set:

Post trial-motions by either party (Rule 50, 59, equitable relief): August 27, 2021

Responses: October 1, 2021

Replies: October 15, 2021

As the Court noted on July 15th, whether an evidentiary hearing is needed can be determined at a later date, if it appears based on the papers that there are disputes of fact that warrant it.

The undersigned consulted counsel to Defendant about setting a briefing schedule. Defendant indicated that it prefers not to set a briefing schedule at this time but instead to request a status conference to revisit whether to proceed in the manner discussed on July 15th.

Sincerely,

s/Justin Mulaire
